The Duke Radiology annual summer course offers a comprehensive curriculum on cutting edge general radiology subjects. The curriculum is structured as a multidisciplinary approach with many topics grouped as specific pathology/modality related presentations. It was designed with an experienced or in training radiologist in mind, who will find it helpful to implement the gained knowledge into their busy practice.

EDUCATIONAL GOALS
After attending the course, participants should be able to:

• Discuss the newest imaging techniques and modalities being used to diagnose various abnormalities in adults and children
• Describe techniques and procedures currently being used in interventional radiology
